Indoor Gardening

Ann-Marie Vazzano

Consumer Reports recently reported on the top home improvement trends for 2017. One trend is a focus on healthy living, which, according to the story, has spawned an interest in growing veggies indoors using products such as the Urban Cultivator (urbancultivator.net). This hydroponic growing system can fit underneath countertops and is fully automated, taking the guesswork out of watering requirements. It can be connected directly to kitchen plumbing and allows users to grow as many as eight kinds of herbs or microgreens simultaneously. GP
