

Front Lines

3/29/2017

For the Bees (and More)

Ellen C. Wells

Need to learn more about protecting pollinators? Well, that's why the Protecting Pollinators in Urban Landscapes Conference was created. The 2017 event will be held October 9-11 in Traverse City, Michigan, and is hosted by Michigan State University and North Carolina State University. This year's program has not been published yet, but I did take a look at the 2015 program—the first year the Conference was held—and it seems they covered all the angles. They'll likely do the same, but with updates, new research and so on. You'll find out a bit more at protectingpollinators.org. GP