New Edition of Square Foot Gardening Guide

Jennifer Polanz

I recently received news that an updated version of a best-selling square foot gardening guide will be ready in time for the holidays. The “All New Square Foot Gardening, 4th Edition” offers up new plans, options and advice for this popular segment of veggie and herb gardening.

According to Steve Roth at Quarto, “There’s a focus on the ease and convenience of the method, helping today’s gardeners overcome today’s challenges, and presenting plenty of inexpensive options for getting started. Extensive new charts and new planting plans combine the vegetables families eat most in the most productive way.”

The book features step-by-step building plans that are easily accomplished in one afternoon, insight on location, how to plant the squares and organic gardening, as well as info on DIY trellises, archways, hoop tunnels and other accessories.

The new edition will be published December 3. GP
