Pollinator Week in June

Jennifer Polanz

Consider this your heads-up: Pollinator Week is officially June 22-28 (although nothing says you can't celebrate the whole month). This is a great time to plan events, offer education, promote special plants and, heck, dress up as your favorite pollinator.

Go to the Pollinator Partnership website where you can download the Pollinator Week logo to share on social media and use in the store. You can also register your events on the website and find more resources and support through the Pollinator Week Toolkit. GP
