Renee's Garden on PBS

Jennifer Polanz

This May, consumers will be able to find out more about the women behind Renee's Garden when a short documentary airs on some PBS stations nationwide. Here's what the company wrote about it: "Last October, we spent two days filming in the trial garden with a production company that works closely with PBS. The garden was packed with end-of-summer flowers, herbs and fall vegetables. It was a moment to reflect on the joy of gardening and how it nourishes body and soul, and connects us to nature. Our mini-documentary will begin airing on national and regional PBS stations in May 2024, but we are thrilled to share a sneak peek with you."
